Superior digital images from paper or film

ImagePrep will improve the way you process, organize and index scanned and related documents. You will benefit from higher productivity and produce the high quality indexed images you need to assure success with your digital document management, document distribution or document archiving system.

Scanning isn't everything

Most scanners do a fine job of scanning a document, but that is just the first step in digitizing images that are easy to store, retrieve and distribute. In order to effectively utilize images, especially engineering drawings and related documents, you must have high quality, high fidelity images that are standardized and indexed appropriately.

Due to the quality and type of the original document being scanned, as well as the differences in various models of equipment being used to scan the media, images are generally not uniform in terms of quality, size or clarity. Since each type of scanner has its own unique, and many times, proprietary software, creating a standard can be difficult.

Images enhanced and organized

ImagePrep uniquely combines image capture, document conversion and clean-up with data collection.

Automated processes for high productivity

ImagePrep has an intuitive, user- friendly interface for workflow creation to provide you with the ability to implement highly productive automated solutions.

Organized any way you want it

ImagePrep delivers high quality, properly named images of documents in combination with virtually any file format structure that can be launched for use with other applications.

If you create scanned images of documents or work with files of scanned documents, you will want to use ImagePrep to obtain high quality, fully indexed images that are ready for use in document management and distribution systems.
